Your support gives kids like Zane a brighter future

At first glance, you'd think Zane was just like other children...
... until you find out how much therapy it's taken for Zane just to understand what to do when his coach says 'run around the blue marker'.

Zane has autism.

He needed specialist early intervention therapy to even begin to speak or understand what others wanted from him. He had to be taught step-by-step how to communicate and understand how to play and how to join in.

Zane is a very active child and more than anything else, he wanted to be part of a team, play his beloved footy and interact with other children. He just didn't know how. And watching him try was heartbreaking.

But after receiving specialist early intervention therapy from Aspect, Zane began to learn to communicate. He now knows how to follow the rules at footy training, play a few basic games, and he has learned how to sit and play with a friend.

Your donations can help children like Zane learn how to communicate and fit in, and teach the social skills that will serve him or her for a lifetime.
